

Environmental Consultant Needed

Job Description

An environmental consultant to work on commercial contracts, and to address a variety of environmental issues for our clients.

Potential candidate should be able to cover a wide range of disciplines such as assessment of soil and water contamination, environmental impact assessment, environmental audit and waste management, design and implementation of remediation and validation.

Typical Work Activities

As there is such a variety in the type of work that an environmental consultant may undertake on a day-to-day basis, there is clearly a wide range of typical activities. The key task is to identify whether soil and/or water is contaminated by means of desk-based research and fieldwork, and then undertake environmental risk assessment.

Typical work activities include:

- ✓ Site Investigation - Collect data to establish a baseline condition for levels of pollution or contamination for a site or area of consideration.
- ✓ Data interpretation - This can include detailed assessment of data, often using software modelling packages, to identify whether 'contamination' exists in accordance with legislative drivers.
- ✓ Development of conceptual models & Risk Assessment - This involves identification and consideration of the potential contaminant sources, critical pathways and receptors that could potentially have an adverse impact on the immediate and wider environment.
- ✓ Report Writing - completion of detailed scientific reporting, written in a manner that can be understood by the reader. Dialogue with Clients, regulators and sub-contractors e.g. analytical laboratories.
- ✓ Due Diligence - perform desk-based research to review previous investigations of a site that a client wants to purchase, and possibly undertaking fieldwork, to identify previous activities on the site and any contamination.
